Greetings from the Founder - David Evans

Welcome to the conference today which I hope you will find of great benefit and interest.

David Evans,
Founder of TINYg and CEO Global Aware International

Another year passes with further terrorist attacks against international targets. Today we provide subject matter experts presenting on different areas of interest and I take this opportunity to thank them for their contribution which is greatly appreciated.

This year we are delighted to welcome Ian Dyson QPM, Commissioner of The City of London Police as our Patron - sincere thanks Ian for your support and unparalleled energy.
To support TINYg we now have 40 advisory board members internationally. The combined experience of our Advisory board is hugely important and makes a significant contribution to driving the group forward and in supporting its objectives and are key to its success. They deserve thanks for their support which is given so freely to our members in 150 countries.

This has been another busy year with the following international events:
Project Servator Initiative for The City of London Police, London, UK
HSB, Hartford, Connecticut, USA
Merrill Lynch, Liberty, Downtown, New York, USA
Standard Charter Bank, City of London, UK

Our 50th International Conference

The London conference on 15th October will be TINYg's 50th international conference. It is a little surreal that from a single meeting at Reuters in Times Square, New York this organisation would grow into the viral membership globally, with the most impressive support and patronage from so many diverse organisations, plus blue light, government and fortune 500 companies.

With conferences in New York, London, Chicago, Washington DC, Hartford, Singapore, Hong Kong, it serves to remind me the relevance of this group to so many

We thank our hosts, sponsors, speakers and indeed our members for their on-going support that makes this network so successful and valuable in our mission securing our environments.

Especial thanks to Andy Williams, Mario Doyle, Aaron Lee and Phil Rogan for their leadership and commitment.

Speakers

George Anderson
Tirector of World Trade Center security for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey

George W. Anderson

Director of World Trade Center security for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey

George Anderson retired from the New York Police Department (NYPD) in 2011 after 30 years of service – serves as chair of the Private Sector Liaison Committee for the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP). During his career with the NYPD, Anderson rose to the position of assistant chief in the department's Patrol Services Bureau, spent five years overseeing the Police Academy and also served as executive officer of the department's Personnel Bureau. Before assuming his current role in 2015, he served as vice president of operations – Manhattan for AlliedBarton Security Services, the largest private security services company in North America.

Karen Baxter
Commander and head of the Economic Unit of The City of London Police

Commander Karen Baxter Head of the Economic Unit - The City of London Police

Commander Karen Baxter joined the City of London Polices Economic Crime Directorate in July 2018 after transferring from The Police Service of Northern Ireland. As the Head of Economic Crime within the City of London she oversees a diverse range of operational units, each focused on complex and specialist aspects of economic crime including investigations into serious Fraud, Money Laundering, Overseas Anti-Corruption, Intellectual Property Crime, Cyber Protect Team, Insurance Fraud Enforcement and Asset Recovery. The City of London is the lead force for Economic Crime and Commander Baxter coordinates that response across UK policing. As part of this portfolio Commander Baxter oversees national services such as Action Fraud, the National Fraud and Cyber Crime Reporting Centre, the National Fraud Intelligence Bureau which incorporates the Economic Crime Victim Care Unit that seeks to enhance the service victims of economic crime receive from Policing. Prior to joining the City of London Police Commander Baxter started her career in the Royal Ulster Constabulary in January 1992 spending a significant part of her service managing serious and complex criminal investigations. Through her work on the Terrorism Investigation Unit within PSNI she worked tirelessly to promote peace in Northern Ireland, working with a range of agencies locally and globally to deliver interventions resulting in a series of high profile convictions. Karen has a BSc in Applied Social Policy and has a Masters with the Institute of Criminology at the University of Cambridge.
