

TiNYg Counter Terrorism Conference

TiNYg (Global Terrorism Information Network) is a global information sharing organisation with members in 150 countries.

Supported by:

TiNYg Safe Cities Conference – Middle East 2025

Empowering Public-Private Partnerships for a Safer Future

TiNYg is honoured to welcome David Evans, Nicholas Dore, and Eddie Reyes, three distinguished leaders with a combined 90 years of decorated law enforcement experience across the US and UK. Their careers have focused on counter-terrorism, special operations, and building global security partnerships.

You'll also hear from distinguished speakers including representatives from Mastercard, PwC, Cundall, and other global security and technology experts.

Why Attend?

Expanding into the Middle East, outside the 150 countries we already provide services to, allows TiNYg to address the region's unique security challenges and build bridges between global experts and local authorities. This event creates a vital platform for knowledge exchange, innovation and strengthening resilience against emerging threats, mirroring the success of TiNYg's UK and US forums.

This is more than a conference, it's a call to action. Whether you're responsible for designing urban security strategies, implementing tech-driven solutions, or driving corporate resilience, the TiNYg Safe Cities Conference offers the platform, the people, and the purpose to make a real impact.
